“Chungaboo Language Series” iPad App Accelerates Language Learning
Just in time for Back to School

AUSTIN, TX – Chungaboo recently announced the release of the Chungaboo Language Series, an innovative new iPad app that helps children learn to read in up to six different languages, just in time for the upcoming school year. The app incorporates a series of educational picture eBooks along with an action-packed, dynamic word game that “slings” flashcards for the user to match in the spirit of all-time favorites like Fruit Ninja. Over 15 in-game achievements provide hours of fun.

“The Chungaboo Language Series is designed to keep young children engaged when reading, while at the same time providing opportunities for advanced users to go at their own accelerated learning pace when studying a new language,” says co-founder Sarah Marquez.

With the Chungaboo Language Series app, children will become captivated by rich animations while learning basic vocabulary in their language of choice. Users can track progress with Apple’s Game Center, and earn badges that are uniquely crafted for the languages being studied.

The app supports the six most spoken languages in the United States: Chinese (Mandarin), English, French, German, Italian, and Spanish. When exploring the app, content will be read aloud by professional educators, each of whom have extensive translation and tutoring experience. With this integrated, interactive technology, the child’s learning experience is enhanced by the amazing illustrations, animations, and rich narratives that tell a story as they learn and progress through the book.

With the simple idea of making learning fun, the Chungaboo Language Series was the vision of a group of parents who were inspired to improve how their kids learn using the latest mobile devices. The current titles available will teach readers general concepts such as numbers, letters, and animals while also teaching a new language.

This app is available now in the Apple App Store and is $0.99 for the initial download, in a fully functional version. As users continue to grow their vocabulary, they can purchase additional eBook content at $.99 per title for an enriched learning experience.
